...ATTENDANCE OF THE COMMITTEE ON CREDENTIALS.

Reference having been made to the delay of the Committee on Credentials, touching the New-York delegation, a member of that Committee stated that the Committee would probably report to-morrow morning.

After a motion to adjourn, Mr. Pugsley, of Indiana, moved that the Convention now go into ballot for the Presidential candidate.

Mr. Rinearer, of Texas, said that New-York had a right to be heard—they had already passed the platform over their heads, but in the balloting they had a right to vote.

Mr. Wilson, of Iowa, said let the New-Yorkers unite, if they can—if not, we can get along without them.

Adjourned to 10 o'clock Thursday morning.

FOURTH DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

The New-York Case—Reports of the Committee on Credentials.

THURSDAY, June 5, 1856.

At the opening of the Convention this morning, Mr. J. W. Stevenson, of Kentucky, after a brief speech, presented the following

Majority Report of the Committee on Credentials:

Whereas, The delegation from the State of New-York recommended by Hon. Horatio Seymour are a regularly constituted portion of the Democratic Party of said State, and whereas the delegation from said State represented by Hon. Samuel Beardsley and others are not regularly constituted, and have voluntarily placed themselves to which by the session and support both the nominees of the National Democratic Convention now in session, and the platform of principles adopted, therefore

Resolved, That we the duly accredited Democracy of New-York are entitled to the seats at the meeting of this Convention, to the exclusion of the delegation from that State as now constituted.

Resolved, That that portion of the Democracy of New-York represented by the delegation of which Hon. Horatio Seymour is Chairman are entitled, on the score of numbers to forty-four delegates, and that portion of the Democracy represented by the delegation of which Hon. Samuel Beardsley is Chairman, is entitled, on the score of numbers to twenty-six delegates in said Convention.

Resolved, That said delegates be admitted in proportion aforesaid to seats in the Convention, the persons in the said delegations first appointed by their respective organizations, that is to say, the delegates entitled to cast the vote of the State of New-York in the Convention, the minority shall not be subject to the majority of that delegation.

Resolved, That the committee from New-York, when organized, be empowered to report their action upon the report of the committee to-day to the Convention.

Mr. James A. Bayard, of Delaware, then presented the following

Minority Report of the Committee on Credentials.

The undersigned, members of the Committee on Credentials, consisting of the representatives on that Committee from the States of Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Indiana, Maine, Wisconsin, New-Hampshire and California, beg leave to submit the following report:

The Committee assembled at 11 o'clock A. M., on the 2d inst., during the session of the Convention, by its permission, and proceeded to hear the contesting delegations from the State of New-York, representing what are commonly called the Hard and Soft sections of the Democratic Party of that State.

The delegation representing the Convention by its authority Committee, as it is managed on the part of the Hards, was Samuel Beardsley and David L. Seymour, in place of the Softs, Horatio Seymour and Lorenzo B. Shepard. Both delegations were fully heard, and the hearing closed about 9 o'clock P. M.

It is by request of the parties printed arguments in each case, in the same manner that the oral arguments of counsel before courts of justice are reported, were submitted, and the documents referred to therein were furnished to the Committee. Several propositions submitted to the Committee were withdrawn, and the Committee continued until near midnight, and was resumed on the morning of the 4th, and continued until [illegible] P. M. Of several propositions submitted none were finally acted on by the Committee.

A proposition was submitted by the representative from Indiana, to endorse the Hard delegation entitled to their seats, which he subsequently withdrew, on the ground of convenience, with a view to the substitution of a proposition informally submitted by the representative from Maine, which was intended, it is understood, to effect the object contemplated among the Democratic Party of New-York.

A proposition was also informally submitted by the representative from Kentucky, which in its preamble declared the Democratic party to be the regular organization of the New-York Democracy, and which proposed to admit the contesting parties on the basis of the average vote obtained by the two sections respectively in the years 1852, 1853 and 1854.

After the withdrawal of the representative from Indiana of his proposition to admit the Hard delegation to seats in the Convention to the exclusion of the Softs, the representative from Missouri moved the adoption of the resolution informally submitted by the member from Kentucky.

The representative from Indiana then moved the proposition informally submitted by the member from Delaware as a substitute, which is as follows:

Whereas, The Democratic Party of New-York, from causes which it is unnecessary to analyze here, for several years past have been divided into two sections, acting on some occasions in concert, and on others severing their organizations;

And whereas, The principles professed and declared in the resolutions adopted by one section of the party in August, 1855, in the State Convention, by which the delegation from that section claiming seats in the National Convention were adopted, and in the principles professed and declared in the resolutions adopted by the other section in January, 1856, at the special Convention, by which the other delegation also claiming seats were appointed, the Committee are unable to discover any difference so far as relates to national questions, and being of opinion that the decision of said contesting delegations represent, finally, the entire Democracy of New-York—now, therefore,

Resolved, That the Chairman be directed to inform the Executive Committee of each contesting delegation that the Committee will recommend the rejection of both delegations by the National Convention, unless waiving their claims they shall recommend to be united in proportion aforesaid to vote in the Convention, the persons first appointed in each of the delegations

NEW-YORK CITY.

HAVE WE ANY CHRISTIAN CHURCH?

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Tribune:

I do not mean individuals wearing masculine habiliments, but persons who are gentle and easily entreated, who are ready to all persons. As an instance of modern clergy, I will relate the following incident which took place in one of the Eighth-avenue cars last evening. A lady stood at the corner of Seventh-street, waiting for a horse; I, in the middle of the street, as under the influence of Christian Meditations and other duties of Benevolence, was endeavoring to procure a conveyance to the Five Points, and had been deeply affected by Kate's conversion, and had refused Roman Catholic promises, in Brooklyn, to leave, a Miss Tatlor, the daughter of wealthy and fashionable parents, and left all for Christ's sake. After accomplishing this good work, the dear girl died, and her funeral is largely attended, the Rev. Dr. Chapin officiating. I will return to the narrative.

A Bishop of Vermont, and his wife, were visiting in the city, and were invited to attend the funeral of Miss Tatlor, and to ride in the carriage with the family. Mrs. Bishop, in order to visit the family, in order to sympathize with them, some afternoon when she should call for her, to go to ride. I was then in the office of the Fire-Escape Company, and was requested to go to the house of mourning, and consulted it proper for me to go in my working clothes, or to change my dress. I thought it best to go as I was, and went in my working clothes, and was introduced to the Bishop and his wife, and to the family, and to the pastor of the church, and to the physician, and to the undertaker, and to the coachman, and to the footman, and to the waiting-maid, and to the cook, and to the scullion, and to the boy, and to the dog, and to the cat, and to the canary bird, and to the parrot, and to the monkey, and to the gold fish, and to the snails, and to the worms, and to the grubs, and to the flies, and to the mosquitoes, and to the fleas, and to the bed-bugs, and to the cockroaches, and to the rats, and to the mice, and to the moles, and to the ants, and to the spiders

☞ We have seen, or heard, it stated that, with the exception of the South Carolina and one or two Richmond papers, all the Southern journals denounce the assault of BROOKS upon Mr. SUMNER. Perhaps on this point, as a matter of fact, the testimony of a Southern paper may be worth attention. The Richmond Enquirer says:

"A few Southern journals, affecting exclusive refinement of feeling or regard for the proprieties of official intercourse, unite with the Abolition press in condemning the chastisement inflicted upon SUMNER by Hon. P. S. BROOKS. We have no patience with these newly-sanctified Pharisees of the Press.

"In the mean, the press of the South applaud the conduct of Mr. Brooks, without condition or limitation. Our approbation, at least, is entire and unreserved. We consider the act good in conception, better in execution, and best of all in consequence."

☞ The session of the House of Representatives on Saturday lasted about a minute.

Mr. Buchanan and Henry Clay.

The strong points, if such they may be styled, in the nomination of Mr. BUCHANAN are, that he has age in public life and hails from Pennsylvania. The first is long enough to have given him experience, but whether this really amounts to statesmanship, in its highest sense, is questionable. The second will, undoubtedly, have its weight with the Democracy, for Pennsylvania, after seventy years' probation, would seem, from her commanding position, as the second State in the Union, to have good claim to a President. To a Democratic President she has, perhaps, fairly earned the entitlement.

We question not only the statesmanship but the fairness and truthfulness in politics of Mr. BUCHANAN. His want of candor and manliness toward his opponents of the old National Republican and Whig Parties, and especially to HENRY CLAY, will not be forgotten in the coming canvass; nor will they be forgiven by the generation of Whig voters, now passing away. He has not only much to answer for to the old friends of Mr. CLAY, but he is responsible, in a large measure, for the long and unhappy estrangement between that great statesman and General JACKSON. He was the friend of the latter in the Presidential contest of 1824, which carried JACKSON, ADAMS and CRAWFORD, as the three highest candidates into the House of Representatives, and resulted in the election of JOHN QUINCY ADAMS by a transfer of the Western strength of Mr. CLAY. The "bargain and intrigue" slander originated with Mr. BUCHANAN, although first promulgated by his colleague GEORGE KREMER. General JACKSON, in repeating or giving credence to the charge, made Mr. BUCHANAN his principal witness. When publicly appealed to, his letter, although signally failing to confirm the testimony he was expected to give, did not do Mr. CLAY that ample justice which he, above all other men at Washington, while the contest in the House was pending, in February, 1825, had it in his power to render.

The charge rested wholly on the fact that Mr. CLAY took office under Mr. ADAMS as Secretary of State. There was not the semblance of any other proof, direct or by implication, of bargain; while the first and only overt intrigue on the subject of Mr. CLAY's support, that ever the country was made sensible of—and that, by the magnanimous forbearance of Mr. CLAY not for 15 or 20 years afterwards—was really initiated by JAMES BUCHANAN himself. It was he that said to Mr. CLAY—possibly "jocosely," as he recently declined the overture of Lord CLARENDON to arbitrate the Central American question—that he could be made Secretary of State by the election of General JACKSON. If ever there was a motive to bargain for the office, which Mr. C. could have entertained, it was thus presented to him; for he was personally not on terms with General JACKSON, and politically averse to the elevation of a military candidate, while high civic attainments and experience like those of Mr. ADAMS could be snuffed of by the country. And this Mr. BUCHANAN well knew.

That Mr. B. volunteered his good offices to trade with Mr. CLAY, without previous concert or consultation with General JACKSON, is more than probable. But that his intermeddling with the question did not cease with the refusal, tacit, if not direct, of Mr. C. to entertain the seductive overture, is rendered almost if not quite certain by the fact that BUCHANAN's conversation with JACKSON made such impression on the latter as to lead him to charge, if not to believe, that the Secretaryship was the sole consideration of Mr. CLAY's ultimate preference for his rival.

The ungenerous calumny has long since been exploded, but not before doing infinite mischief to one of the purest and worthiest statesmen that has ever been refused his country's highest honor, and not without widening the breach and rendering implacable the personal hostility between Mr. CLAY and General JACKSON. This ought not to have been, and the fault, in a very great degree, we repeat, was with the Pennsylvania representative, who failed alike in nerve and magnanimity, in attempting to explain the true origin of the charge and so refute it in its incipiency.

It may be said, in reply to all this, that Mr. CLAY was subsequently on kind personal terms with Mr. BUCHANAN. It was his nature to be so with all his political opponents, whom officious enemies or false friends had not bitterly estranged from him. He no doubt did forgive Mr. BUCHANAN the wrong he inflicted in 1826–27, and was poorly repaid for it. He kept Mr. B.'s secret from the most exalted sense of confidence and generous and self-sacrificing magnanimity for nearly a score of years. And his return for this was rendered in speeches from Mr. B. in the Presidential canvass of 1844, through Pennsylvania, where he unblushingly declared that he knew both the candidates personally well, and believed JAMES K. POLK to be truer to a Tariff of Protection, which then concerned Pennsylvania most nearly, than HENRY CLAY! Mr. C. lost the vote of Pennsylvania, and with it the Presidency. Mr. POLK was inaugurated, and after such service made JAMES BUCHANAN Secretary of State.

The Nomination in Washington.

There was a very remarkable scene in Washington on Saturday night, on the occasion of a ratification meeting in response to the nomination of Mr. BUCHANAN.

The only orators on the occasion were the three rejected candidates, CASS, DOUGLAS and PIERCE, who were all delighted to applaud the wisdom and patriotism manifested by their rejection. Mr. CASS is reported as having made a capital hit at the Republicans by saying that the Democracy must now gird on their armor, not the armor of Sharpe's rifles, which were recommended by the Northern churches, but of argument and reason, and so forth. It is rather singular that he did not recommend the use of gutta percha canes, a kind of instrument that has been so universally approved of down South. Senator DOUGLAS, in applauding the platform of the Cincinnati Convention, stated that the Democracy of Massachusetts and of South Carolina were identical in principle, which could be said of no other party. He probably founded his opinion upon the manner in which the Massachusetts delegates to the Convention had treated Mr. BROOKS. But he will doubtless be undeceived next November. Mr. PIERCE was not so jubilant as General CASS and Senator DOUGLAS, but he said he felt sure that they were all sincere in the conviction that the stability of the Union depends upon the principles declared by the Convention.

They may be sincere in such a conviction, but they must be equally sure in the belief that the attempt to put such principles in practical operation has brought the Union nearer to the verge of civil war than it has ever been brought before.

Poor Pierce.

Just four years ago FRANKLIN PIERCE was a rising man; he was the nominee of the Baltimore Democratic Convention for the Presidency, and all eyes were turned towards him as the sun and hope of his party; a hundred pens were busy in writing his biography, cannon were fired in all parts of the country in demonstrations of joy at his nomination, and thousands of politicians were hurrying to his home in Concord to congratulate him on his felicity, and to receive a gracious smile from his countenance. He was the man of the hour. But now? After being three years in office he is deserted by his party, he is hung in effigy in his native town, he is fast sinking into the obscurity from which he was accidentally dragged, and his former rival is now the cynosure of Democratic eyes. If PIERCE should ever feel like amusing himself with the pen after retiring to the deep shades of domestic life in New-Hampshire, what a book he might write on the ingratitude of parties! What a sinking of the heart, what a terrible revulsion of feeling such a man must experience as he looks back upon his official career and reflects that all his subserviency, and debasement, the sacrifice of principle, and the laceration of conscience, which he has suffered, to conciliate the political Mokanna in whose hands he placed his destiny, have failed to gain him the respect or confidence of that insatiable power. The Slaveocracy aim at power, and no considerations can induce them to sacrifice the chance of success to a generous impulse. Four years ago BUCHANAN was shoved aside because he was unavailable; and now, having, fortunately for himself, been placed where he could not be identified with the movement which has crushed all his former rivals, he is the only available candidate they could light upon. Three years spent at the Court of St. James, in making pleasant speeches at Lord Mayors' feasts, in writing diplomatic notes, and paying visits of ceremony in courtly circles, have made Mr. BUCHANAN available for the Presidency. It was a remarkable course of training for such a piece of good fortune. But poor PIERCE, with all the resources of the Government at his command, has been unable to secure for himself the empty honor of a renomination. He was taken up, in the first place, because he was unknown, and now he is spurned because he is known. The feelings of this Belshazzar of the White House, as he read the mene, mene, of the telegraph, without the aid of an interpreter, on Firday, could hardly find a compensation in the remembrance of his three years of Presidential glory. He is doomed to see a lurking smile of contempt in the faces of all who visit him between now and the close of his official career in March, and to be conscious of retiring to private life poorer in reputation, and in all that makes life happy, than when he emerged from it to accept the perilous honors bestowed upon him.

In addressing the crowd that rushed to the White House, on Saturday, to serenade the rejected candidate, he made a speech which must have sadly contrasted with his secret feelings. His rejection by the Cincinnati Convention was neither more nor less than an open proclamation to the whole world that his conduct in the Presidency has been such that his party did not dare to renominate him, either because they feared defeat by the people with him for their candidate, or because they did not consider him competent to discharge the duties of the office. Else, why should they reject him? Virginia, who had been the first to give him her vote in 1852, would not now pay him the empty compliment of a ballot. His position before the country is a more humiliating one than any occupant of the White House as yet filled. But, he has had his day, and though he has a little longer official existence to linger out, he is already among the things that were. He is as dead, politically, as any of his predecessors in the exalted office, which, unhappily for the peace of the country, in an evil hour he was elected to fill. But why should not Mr. PIERCE have been renominated, since the policy of his administration is to be continued by Mr. BUCHANAN if he should be elected? It is rather remarkable that in all the speeches that have been made by his friends applauding the elimination of his successor, not a single apology has been offered, nor a reason given for rejecting PIERCE.

Advantages of a War with England.

Now that the exciting question of the Cincinnati nomination has been settled, there will be time to discuss the probabilities of a war with England, growing out of the discharge of CRAMPTON, and the possible effects of such an event on the general interests of the country. For our own part, we do not believe in the probability of any serious difficulty with England on that score, as we have already stated, but this is not the universal opinion. One of our cotemporaries on the other side of Mason and Dixon's line is of opinion that there will be war, and is rather pleased than otherwise with the supposed prospect of such a calamity. The South, as a general thing, is certainly not in favor of a war, at least with any European power, and least of all with England, for it would be likely to feel the effects of such an event more seriously than either the East or the West. But the paper in question advances some very singular reasons for thinking a war desirable, among which is the opportunity it would afford the South to get rid of the North and seek the protection of Queen VICTORIA. It may well be doubted whether any American paper would have the courage to publish such an argument, but here is a part of the article in question quoted literally. It is certainly a curiosity:

"We are heartily sick and disgusted with the canting and mercenary hypocrites of Yandeedom. This war will enable us to get rid of them, or turn the tables upon them, and render them a source of profit instead of expense. It will enable us to regain our own—pilfered from us by many a sharp transaction. It will enable us to build up our country by the recapture of the millions of which we have been plundered. It will enable us to get rid of Yankee Presidents, and to preserve Anglo-Saxon freedom, by reviving the old connection with the mother country. (Who would not rather be ruled over by a lady, like Queen VIC., than any nasal-twanged gentleman that Yankee land can produce?) It will enable us, with the United States South, on one side, in close alliance with England and Canada on the other, very speedily to bring these long-prayered sharpers to their senses, by confining them to the starving soil on which they were born, and to the thin air around them."

There are not many papers at the South that could vent such insane trumpery as this, but there are too many of them that daily publish what about means the same, although it is invested with a little more decency of language.

The Brooks Brutality.

The popular sentiment, at all events in the Free States, was never more unanimous upon any subject, than it now is in demanding from the House of Representatives the prompt and rigorous punishment of Mr. BROOKS for his brutal and ruffianly assault upon Senator SUMNER. There is no party feeling about the matter. Men of all parties and of all classes feel that every consideration of self-respect, as well as every interest of the country, demands that this affair should be regarded and treated as a gross violation of the privileges of Congress and as an outrage upon the fundamental principles of our free institutions.

The Constitution provides in express terms, that

"Each House may determine the rules of its proceedings, and punish its members for disorderly behavior; and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member."

It will be seen that such punishment may be inflicted upon any member of either House for disorderly behavior, as the House itself may consider just. The only limitation upon the power thus conferred is that which requires a two-thirds vote for the expulsion of a member. It is presumed that two-thirds of the House will not vote for the expulsion of Mr. BROOKS. The fact that SIXTY-EIGHT members voted against any inquiry into the case is regarded as conclusive upon this point, that at least one-third of the House is prepared to screen Mr. BROOKS from any punishment whatever for the atrocious outrage which he has committed. But the majority must not consider themselves in the slightest degree relieved by this fact, from the responsibility of the case. That majority has the power to imprison Mr. Brooks for the remainder of the Session. This power is expressly given by the Constitution in the language we have already cited. And the public sentiment of the Northern States will exact, from every Northern member, its prompt and rigorous exercise.

The Committee has reported a resolution recommending his expulsion. Whenever that shall fail to pass for lack of a two-thirds vote, we trust that the chairman of the Committee will move to punish Mr. BROOKS for his disorderly behavior, by imprisonment. And we should be glad to see the name of the Northern member who will venture to vote against it.

Railroad Accident—Murder, &c.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times:

LOCKPORT, Friday, June 6, 1856.

Another Railroad accident! Our town is all excitement this morning. The Dépôt and other public places are crowded with people, all anxious and excited to know the result of the accident which occurred a few miles from here last evening. The following are the facts, as nearly as they can be ascertained at present:

The occurrence took place about two miles this side of Pekin, on the road from this place to Niagara Falls, between two passenger trains, both going nearly at full speed, when they came in collision, resulting in the death of one fireman and an elderly lady, named WARD, and wounding some twenty other passengers. It is not well ascertained yet with whom the fault lies. When will this kind of carnage cease? Who can tell?

MAN MURDERED ON SUSPENSION BRIDGE.

Day before yesterday two men met on Suspension Bridge who had formerly been partners in the butchering business, one having charged the other with appropriating some of the funds that did not belong to him, at the same time presenting a pistol and demanding him to pay over the money or he would shoot him. The other refusing the demand was fired upon, the charge taking effect in his breast, and proved fatal in a few moments. The prisoner is now in custody here awaiting his trial.

In haste, yours, W.

Rev. Henry Ward Beecher.

What a contrast between the aspects of New-York and the streets of Brooklyn! The latter is full of [illegible] and bewildering excitement, the other so impregnated with domestic influences and peaceable employment. Here the very air, moist with the throbbings of an unwieldy, restless City population, there all the calming, lulling impressions of a quiet rural town.

Some such thoughts passed through our minds as, on walking up Hicks-street to Mr. BEECHER's church, on last Sunday evening, we caught a glimpse of the cosy, cozy, tree-imbedded streets and avenues, with their neat, comfortable little houses, all scorning outward show and flourish, as if conscious of the domestic wealth within. The look is not free from dullness and monotony, but there is a quiet, low music stealing round the houses, breathing of home.

The services had begun when we entered the Church. It was full, and we had to go up to the gallery to find standing room. But we found ourselves richly rewarded for the fatigue of standing, by the gorgeous beauty presented by the congregation, when viewed from the elevated position in which we stood. We might almost compare the appearance of the closely packed audience, as looked upon, to a rich bed of flowers. The varied colors of the ladies' dresses, contributed powerfully to bring about this horticultural hallucination. What an impressive spectacle! Hundreds of men and women assembled together, all moved and agitated by their individual emotions, yet for the moment all enthralled by one devotional influence. These influences, emanating from the religious aspirations of the human soul, are capable of being expanded by a gifted, or cramped by an indifferent minister. Mr. BEECHER is one of the most gifted ministers of America, and consequently we find a corresponding influence exercised upon his congregation.

Masses of people are always instinctively inclined to pay homage to God. But this inspiration, incidental to the instinct of humanity, is thickly overlaid with the shadows of material cares and material thoughts. To chase these away a peculiar influence, at once strong and sympathetic, is required, but once removed and thus untrammeled by clayey troubles, the soul is only too happy to give itself up to higher and nobler thoughts.

This strong and sympathetic influence Mr. BEECHER wields in a most wonderful degree. We are, above all, struck by his presence. It is that of a thoroughly practical, but exquisitely ideal man. A man with the strong will of a soldier, but with the fanciful playfulness of a child. A man as ready to make his audience fight to beat down the enemies of God as to make them smile, to popularize the cause of God. A powerful determination to make that cause triumphant sits on his thoughtful brow. His presence is not so much that of a zealous clergyman as that of an earnest man. Though he stands upon the pulpit as one of the soldiers of the cross, what moves the audience is not so much his professional attitude as the electricity of his manhood.

His eloquence is in harmony with his presence. He commences stirring up the thoughts of his audience with the dignified serenity of a philosopher. He then appeals to the emotional nature of humanity with the tender sympathy of a woman, and having thus sent a firebrand of reflection into the mind and a volley of emotion into the heart of his audience, he proceeds to accomplish his victory by impetuous, vehement batteries of speech and brilliant artilleries of thought. The manner of address, like the tenor of his sermon, is based on an intimate knowledge of human nature. The thought reaches the mind, the tenderness moves the heart, and the vehemence of speech strikes the senses, and having thus lodged a foothold in the mainspring of human nature, he never delivers a sermon without producing a strong effect, and never produces a strong effect without improving the hearts of his congregation.

But what we admire much more than either the picturesqueness or the fiery eloquence of his sermons, is the moral courage and moral sincerity which they display. He dares to speak out boldly what every one feels intensely. He is a huge truth-teller. The world is full of pretentious scholars and artificial ministers, all with some excellent features undoubtedly, but they are comparatively few who dare speak the truth and nothing but the truth. Mr. BEECHER is one of these, and it is the stoutest pillar of his fame.

Do we mean to say Mr. BEECHER is altogether free from weakness as a pulpit orator? To say so would be to claim for him a degree of perfection against which his own modesty would be the first to protest. Here and there he introduces a strange, odd figure of speech, or some startling simile which seems to clash with the solemnity of the occasion. But as well reason with the hurricane for beating down some delicate flower, as with a fiery orator for trampling on some feeble feeling. The question is not how to impress one or the other fastidious intellect, but how to impress the generality of a congregation.

This question Mr. BEECHER has solved, and in the strong, comprehensive, practical grasp of his sermons, he grows more successful every week. On the whole we regard Mr. BEECHER as one of the most extraordinary preachers of this or any other country. Intensely conservative about the theories, he is vehemently radical about the practices of religion. His position in this respect is anomalous. The conservative finds fault with his radicalism. The radical with his conservatism. But it is only that anomaly incidental to the position of all those whose soul is bent on reforming while their heart shrinks from destroying.

NEW-YORK CITY.

☞ We took an opportunity on Saturday to inspect a new application of caoutchouc in the attempt to lessen the vibration upon the rails, and consequently the less amount of wear and tear of the carriages. A portion of the line, two miles beyond Jersey-street, is the subject of experiment. The contrivance may be thus briefly described. The rail, instead of being fixed upon wooden transverse sleepers, is based upon hollow upright supports, which are firmly set in the ground and resting on a stone foundation. These cylindrical supports are placed at the intervening distances of about two feet, and across the track they are connected by cross ties, which form more than a substitute for the ordinary wooden sleepers. Into the cavity of each supporter there descends a plunger, or piston, which rests upon an india rubber spring-plug. On the top of the piston is a chair of the ordinary form for holding the rail, which is of the ordinary length, or about 18 feet. The contrivance is ingenious and, it is said, will prove less expensive than the ordinary cost of the repair, not merely of railroads, but of the engines and carriages that are injured by them. Another advantage is, the facility by which any inequality of level can be instantly adjusted by fresh interpositions of additional or fewer necessary elastic additions. A third, is said to be the perfect indestructibility of the materials, inaccessible to moisture and not liable to displacement, as compared with the rotting and sinking of wooden sleepers. It was easy, in passing over them in the carriage, to perceive the transition from one kind of rail to the other, somewhat like the difference between the tread upon elastic carpet and the bare flag stones.

☞ At the last Monthly Meeting of the managers of the American and Foreign Bible Society, a very interesting communication from Rev. J. G. ONCKEN, of Germany, was read, stating that the Society's Colporteurs in Central Europe, had, during the past year contributed to the supply of more than five hundred preaching-stations, and to the hopeful conversion of twelve hundred and forty-three souls, and that some of these Colporteurs now were suffering bitter persecutions which would lead, it was feared, to fines and prisons for circulating the Word of God and holding religious conventicles. Mr. ONCKEN had already published at the Society's expense forty thousand [illegible] New Testaments since the first of January and would need twenty thousand more in the course of a few weeks.

☞ There has been great excitement recently in Saddlebacks circles, occasioned by the elopement of a gentleman well known as a gallant Major of dragoons in the late west-point affair, (in which he lost his left arm,) with the daughter of a gentleman, who, under the late Administration, held an important office at this port. The Major, who is very wealthy, has left a wife behind him in his flight. The guilty parties, it is understood, have gone to Europe, whence the lady, with her parents, has recently returned.

NEW-JERSEY.

Water for Paterson.

The Reservoir at Paterson, N. J., is very nearly finished, and they are about laying the pipes through the streets of this very delightful town. The Passaic River is hereafter to be the beverage of its inhabitants. It is expected that all the preparations will have been completed and the supply of water be introduced into the town by November. The Reservoir is quite a large structure, built in a very substantial manner of the brown stone, which is used so much for building fronts in New-York. Some are dissatisfied with the material, preferring granite for such an edifice, because it does not absorb moisture like the red sand stone, and because it is a more durable and a better looking building stone. However, the taste of the water will probably not be affected by the walls which surround it, and this is the most essential point to be considered in erecting a reservoir. We congratulate the good wives of Paterson upon their increased facilities, in prospective, for house-cleaning and floor-scrubbing.

☞ There is a great deal of trouble in New Orleans because the liquor-sellers persist in selling rum to Slaves. A hundred blacks got together in Baronne-street, a little while ago, and drank and gambled to the extent that the city press sounds the alarm, and fears a new Negro Plot, and entreats the authorities to put a stop to the scenes of violence that follow scenes of drunkenness. It is an old evil, and apparently past checking.

☞ Gen. WM. DE BUYS, an old citizen of New-Orleans, died in that City a few days since. He was formerly Speaker of the lower branch of the Louisiana Legislature, State Treasurer, Treasurer of the Mint and of the First Municipality of New-Orleans, and Postmaster of the City. In the war of 1813 he took a prominent part, and in all his relations in life won high esteem. His age was 59.

☞ A full complement of mechanics is now busily engaged at the Navy-Yard in fitting out the United States store-ship Supply, in compliance with an order from the department to that effect. Her destination is not yet been made known.

☞ A young man by the name of CODY, a painter by trade, was killed at Rahway, N. J., on Friday evening, by the explosion of a cannon which was being fired in honor of the nomination of BUCHANAN. His parents reside at Ogdensburg, N. Y.

Another Revolution in Mexico.

From the Texas State Gazette, May 24.

We learn here from reliable persons, that COMONFORT has ordered VIDAURRI to collect all the arms he had distributed among different communities of his State, and to deliver them up to the General Government.

Colonel (now General) LANDERAS is marching with 4,000 men against VIDAURRI.

The Union of Coahuila and Nuevo Leon is annulled.

Gen. LANDERAS has been nominated Commandant General, and Dr. SANTIAGO ROSSOUVE Governor ad interim of Coahuila.

The latter has already published his proclamation and appointed his officers; among others Capt. SEAL is Collector of our frontier District (Rio Grande.) He was, however, arrested yesterday, together with the individual that acts as his Secretary, and escorted to Monterey.

There is no doubt that VIDAURRI will resist the order for the delivering up of arms and the entry of Gen. LANDERAS and his troops, and that he is only campaigning a little, in order to ascertain the feelings of the people and of public opinion; but that before long he will declare himself against COMONFORT.

He has, no doubt, a large majority of the citizens on his side, and we hope here that he will be able to sustain himself against the despotic miasma of the Central Government.

Sympathy for Walker in Galveston, Texas.

Two meetings have been held in Galveston to take into consideration the best method of raising means to assist WALKER. They were both presided over by President BURNETT, the first Chief Magistrate of the Republic of Texas, assisted by General SHERMAN and Dr. CARPER, as Vice-Presidents, and G. FARRAR, Esq., as Secretary. All these gentlemen were in the battle of San Jacinto, and at the prominent position assigned them in these meetings were not only very appropriate, but an interesting feature in their organization and proceedings. On both occasions several patriotic speeches were delivered by Gen. MOLEON, Professor FORNEY, HENRY ANDREWS, Esq., and others, and considerable sums subscribed to the cause.

During the last meeting several young men volunteered their services.

Other companies are forming in the interior, and it is altogether likely that Nicaragua will receive some material aid from Texas before long.

Members of the (O. S.) Assembly at the Smithsonian.

From the N. Y. Observer, June 5.

We are requested to publish the following proceedings:

At a meeting of the members of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, O. S., now in session in this City, who are being entertained at the Smithsonian House, for the purpose of giving some public expression in relation to their kind and hospitable entertainment.

On motion, Maj. John Hendricks was called to the Chair, and Rev. L. N. Conrad, appointed Secretary. The object of the meeting being understood, on motion, Rev. James Wallis, Mr. Joseph Barnett, and Rev. L. N. Conrad, were appointed a Committee to draft such preamble and resolutions as should be expressive of the sense of the meeting in reference to the object proposed. The Committee forthwith prepared and reported the following, which was unanimously adopted.

Whereas, By the designation of the Committee of Arrangements for the accommodation of the Members of the Presbyterian Church, O. S., now in session in this City, some thirty-six members of said Assembly have been entertained at the "Smithsonian House:"

Resolved, That the members of said General Assembly present, in behalf of themselves and their brethren, [illegible] publicly acknowledging their kind and hospitable entertainment by the proprietor of the "Smithsonian," (Mr. STEBBET KOPMAN,) and in saying that every attention has been paid to their comfort and accommodation which could have been asked or desired. And,

Resolved, Further, that we will not only carry with us to our respective homes a grateful remembrance of the kindness and hospitality shown us, but will let no occasion pass unimproved which shall afford an opportunity of recommending to public notice, and to our friends especially, the well regulated and "orderly conducted" "Smithsonian," together with its gentlemanly proprietor.

Whereupon the meeting adjourned.

JOHN HENDRICKS, Chairman.

L. N. CONRAD, Secretary.

Saratoga Union Hall.

From the Albany Argus.

The Summer Campaign commences at Saratoga with the 1st of June. Indeed, the Congress and Union Hall opened on Thursday, and already numbers many guests from different parts of the Union.

We must not let the occasion pass for noticing the change which has taken place in the Union. During the past year a large building has been added, four stories in height, fronting 150 feet on Broadway, with a wing of 50 feet. This is divided into parlors and lodging-rooms 16 feet by 12 feet, with connecting doors, so as to be suited to families, which have been furnished in the best style. The remainder of the house has been improved and partly refurnished, and the grounds considerably enlarged and beautified.

We see that CHARLES H. PAYN is associated with GEORGE R. PUTNAM in the proprietorship and administration of this celebrated house. The "Union" has been in the charge of the Putnam family for many years, and has acquired its good reputation at their hands. But to Albanians, with which it always was a favorite, it presents an additional claim in the fact that Dr. PAYN is thus connected with it. Dr. P. was born and brought up in this city; and though he passed many years in Canada as a physician and dentist, he has still kept up his connection with the city of his birth and of his family connection. His experiences of travel in Europe and his residence in Montreal and Quebec have qualified him for his present vocation, and have extended his connection. We bespeak for him the patronage of the Albany public, which we are sure he will merit, in addition to his native claims, by his attentiveness and devotion to their wants.

The Union Hall was always the most home-like hotel in Saratoga. There was "higher life," a greater congregation of "bloods," and professed "belles" elsewhere. The viveurs who drank high wines and played high cards; the adventurers, the ostentatious—the reverence riches, and the parvenus, did not give it the preference; but the solid men and the good took their families there; and it always showed a galaxy of beauties in its parlors as radiant and brilliant as the flowers in the fine parterres that surround it.

Those who do not know how to enjoy Saratoga are apt to decry it. But it is the finest watering place in the world, and the only one that it pays [illegible] under all circumstances.

LYON'S MAGNETIC POWDERS.

CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC.—To distinguish the genuine Magnetic Powder (for the destruction of insects) from poisonous imitations it is necessary to examine the wrapper. See that those of England, France, Belgium and the United States, are engraved thereon. Be sure also that a lithographic fac simile of LYON'S SIGNATURES
appears both on the wrapper and the label. This caution is necessary to protect the proprietor from fraud, and the public from danger and disappointment. The leading scientific societies and the first chemists of Europe and America have pronounced the MAGNETIC POWDER the only poisonous insect bane in the world, as well as the most effective and fatal means for the destruction of bedbugs, roaches, fleas, ants, flies, moths, &c., &c., that was ever prepared or sold. The proprietors of the principal
CITY HOTELS
Indorse it. Come and see the testimonials of Prince Albert, Ex-President Fillmore, and hundreds of the nobility of Europe as well as the "sovereigns" of America. The
MAGNETIC PILLS,
For the extermination of rats and mice, are intended with equal emphasis by all who have tried them. Sold and use the model skeleton. German cockroaches, ants, flies, mosquitoes, lizzers, &c., at the Central Depot, No. 481 Broadway.
EMANUEL LYON.

LACKAWANNA RAILROAD AND COAL COMPANY BONDS.—The subscribers offer at private sale $120,000 of the 7 per cent. first mortgage bonds of the above named Company, on favorable terms.

This is a Coal Company, empowered by a perpetual and liberal charter from the State of Pennsylvania, to hold lands, to construct the necessary railroads, and to carry on the business of mining and marketing coal, and is located near Scranton, Pennsylvania.

The Lackawanna Railroad, connecting the Company's mines with the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, (now opened to Elizabethport, N. J.) at Greenville, a point six miles east of Scranton, is completed—a first-class Railroad, nine miles long, with all the equipments and appurtenances necessary to send to market 100,000 tons of Lackawanna Coal before Jan. 1, 1857, agreeably to contract with the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company.

More than 20,000 tons are now stocked at the mines, and ready to come forward to New-York.

The contract is for 20 years to take the coal at the Lackawanna Company shall deliver it at Greenville, and to transport the same at a fixed rate of freight to the wharf of the owners, at Elizabethport, N. J.—150,000 tons per annum for the next two or three years, and then 300,000 tons per annum thereafter.

The entire issue of Bonds authorized under the first and only mortgage is $750,000, of which $675,000 are already issued, in payment of lands and improvements.

The amount now offered—$120,000—will furnish the funds necessary to pay off all indebtedness of the Company, and to establish the business on the rate of 100,000 tons per annum—the remaining $255,000 of Bonds being held in reserve by the Company, to furnish the additional equipment, capital, &c., which will enable the Company—two or three years hence, according to contract—to forward 300,000 tons of coal per annum to market.

The Bonds bear interest at 7 per cent., payable semi-annually in New-York; have 25 years to run, with coupons attached, and a sinking fund provided, and are secured by a first mortgage, executed to Peter A. Hargous, Benj. T. Reed and Wm. B. Clymer, Trustees, on all the property and franchises of the Company located in Pennsylvania, namely:

2,000 acres of first-rate Coal lands, including the town plots of Jessup and Meredith, and also the Coal under 250 acres more—marketable, without improvements, of easiest to market, at from $2000 to $3500 per acre.

9½ miles of first-class Railroad, connecting the Mines with the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad at Greenville, together with side tracks and switches. 2 mine shafts opening 3 workable veins, 30 feet of coal opened, and probably as much more not yet developed, with all the engines, machinery and headings for mining and delivering 300 tons of coal daily; 2 locomotive engines, 60 coal cars, 200 mine cars, 12 gravel cars, and 1 hand car.

One station-house, water tank, turn table, engine-house and wood-shed, at Jessup; machinery and car-shop, with machinery in same, now turning out four coal cars daily; wood-shed and half of station-house, water tank and turn table, at Greenville; 3 cars for passenger and freight; 30 double houses for 60 families of miners, hotel, fencing, stables, &c., at Jessup; all new and of the most approved style.

The cash stock of the Company, paid up, is $710,770, and the whole cash outlay is, at this time, upwards of $1,000,000.

From the high character of the parties interested in this enterprise, and a personal examination of the property, the subscribers feel warranted in recommending the above Bonds to the public as a safe and profitable investment.
